Two More Clubs Ask Admission Into EAHL

(From The Viking News)

League representatives of the Eastern Alberta Hockey League met at Viking on Sunday, November 7. In the absence of president Dr. Asch of Wainwright, who has moved to Ontario, Dr. Bradley of Wainwright was elected president pro-tem and presided at the meeting.

Last year the EAHL consisted of clubs from Vegreville, Vermilion, Viking and Wainwright. At the meeting the Vermilion club was represented by Stan Manyuk and A. Locke, the Wainwright club by J. E. Taylor and J. Humphries, and the Viking club by L. C. McIntyre and Ken Hilliker who acted for Johnnie Halso who was unable to be present. The Vegreville representatives were conspicuous by their absence.

A delegation from St. Paul consisting of Messrs. J. Davidson, Romeo Bedard and Clarence Richard were present with a petition asking that the St. Paul hockey club be included in the League. There was also a petition from Hardisty to join the League but no delegates showed up from that point.

Considerable routine business in connection with the operation of the league was discussed. A motion was passed to invite Bob Harby of Edmonton, to assist take the position of referee-in-chief at the same stipend per game. Objections were voiced to the work of some linesman during the games and this was referred to the chief referee.

As Vegreville was not represented, it was decided to hold another meeting at Wainwright on Sunday, November 21 at 3 p.m.

It was rumored that Vegreville had financial pains and may not be a senior team this year but hopes are that they will. The petitions from St. Paul and Hardisty clubs and other matters were left in abeyance until the meeting at Wainwright.

Officers for the 1954-55 season were elected as follows: President, Dr. Bradley of Wainwright; vice-president, H. W. K. Hilliker of Viking; secretary-treasurer, J. Humphries of Wainwright (re-elected).

Northwestern Utilities, Limited Construction Program, 1954

Along with all other organizations engaged in construction work this year, the Gas Company's program has been considerably delayed due to the wet weather. However, the past few weeks have enabled them to make up much of the time lost early in the year.

Approximately 7 miles of field lines have been laid connecting 4 new wells in the Fairview and Fort Saskatchewan Fields to the Company's system.

A major project on which the Company has been engaged this year is the laying of 42 miles of 12-34" transmission line from the City of Edmonton to the Texaco Exploration Company's Gas Conservation Plant in the Bonnie-Glen-Wizard Lake area. The entire 42 miles of line have been welded, 26 miles fully completed. Due to the wet weather it was necessary to transfer construction crews to another section of the Company's system in the middle of September. The crews will be returning to this project this week and it is expected that the line will be completed early in December.

The transmission and distribution systems to serve the Village of Minerville were completed last week and gas will be turned on in the Village on Wednesday, November 3. There will be a public flare-lighting ceremony attended by Company officials from Edmonton.

Work is now being carried forward on 5 1/2 miles of 8" transmission line from the City of Edmonton to the Acheson Field where the line will be tied in to the plant being erected there by Process Limited. The Company will purchase surplus gas from this plant and use it for the processing plant at Acheson at a cost of some $75,000.00, the equipment for which is now being installed. The entire project should be completed by the end of next week.

A new high pressure gate station has been completed in north east Edmonton and has been tied in to the Company's main transmission line system. This station was required because of the growth of the north east section of the City of Edmonton and in order to provide additional capacity in that area.

Some 48 miles of distribution lines have been laid with another 16 miles yet to be completed. The major distribution project was the construction of 28" and 12" intermediate pressure mains from the new city gate station in north east Edmonton to the packing plant area in that section of the City.

An 8" intermediate pressure main was laid from the City of Red Deer to serve the new Chrysler Parts Plant, south of the City and also to provide additional capacity for the City itself.

The Company has called for tenders for a new building to be constructed in Edmonton adjacent to its warehouse and repair shops on 113th Street between 105th and 106th Avenues. The building will be two stories and basement and will accommodate the Company's meter shop presently located at its office building on 104th Street. In addition the building will contain an auditorium with seating capacity of approximately 300, staff coffee and lunch room facilities, lecture rooms for the training of personnel, drafting room, distribution and plant records offices and the Company's customer service department. When this building is completed it is intended to make certain alterations to the office building on 104 St. in order to accommodate the increased staff required to serve the rapidly increasing number of customers.

The number of customers served by the Company at the present time is 37,440. Some 3,800 services have been installed so far this year and it is anticipated that this figure will be close to 4,000 by the end of the year.

Mr. D. K. Yorath, General Manager of the Company announced changes in positions of some of the Company's senior officials. Mr. B. F. Wilson, Assistant General Manager, has been transferred to Calgary to head up a new department being created to handle inter-company matters relating to Northwestern Utilities Limited, and its associate companies, Canadian Western Natural Gas Company Limited of Calgary and Canadian Utilities Limited, whose head office is in Edmonton. Mr. J. C. Jefferson, who in April, 1953, was released by the Company on loan to the Dominion Government, as Deputy Civil Defence Co-ordinator, has returned to the City and is assuming the position of Manager of New Business awarded to M. E. Stewart, Supt. of Technical Matters to the General Manager.

Swift Current Agro expert describes life in Iceland

SWIFT CURRENT.—J. B. Campbell, forage crop expert at the Dominion experimental station has just returned to Swift Current from a trip to Iceland, where he has been giving technical advice to the Icelandic government in utilizing grazing land in the country.

Mr. Campbell described much of Iceland as a large desert, with blowing sand, high mountains and glaciers.

Occupations of the country vary from fishing to big industry, he said. Mr. Campbell said that the sea was very fertile with cod, which was one of the main fish products. Herring and haddock are also plentiful.

The pasture land is being reseeded by land erosion, caused by blowing sand, Mr. Campbell said and the bad areas are being taken from production and sown to grass.

Big problem

Right now the big problem is to get enough grass. Eventually the desert land of Iceland will be transformed into areas very similar to Saskatchewan's community pastures, Mr. Campbell said.

The climate for horses, cattle and sheep is harder than that in Saskatchewan, the forage specialist pointed out. The animals are much alike in appearance to those seen in parts of Europe 1,000 years ago. The stock in most cases appeared to be a "small edition" of Canadian stock, Mr. Campbell said. In many cases weight of cattle does not exceed 750 pounds.

The people of the country are very practical, and most "every-one" in the cities grow 12 to 16 years of age do the gardening in the parks, children from 10 to 12 years of age work in the hay fields, and operate tractors and other heavy equipment with great skill.

Mr. Campbell said he was impressed with the smallness of the jails in the country, and upon delving into the matter he found that the policy was not to confine people to prison during long periods, but instead, to put into practice a program of rehabilitation.

which their successors follow. From these traditions have come a code that has guided the country to a free and independent state.

Mr. Campbell said that Iceland was known to Greek explorers before the birth of Christ. Irish monks inhabited it about 700 A.D. and stayed for a hundred years. The first parliament met in 930 A.D.

Iceland is settled largely by Norwegians because of its location, although there are plenty of people of Irish and Scotch origin too.

According to Mr. Campbell the cities of Iceland are very beautiful, and modern, and many of them are being rebuilt at the present time.

These so-called Dutch designs were selected as typical of the wide variety of hearts, flowers, fruits, and hex symbols used by the early Dutch settlers in Pennsylvania. The twelve designs on the pattern are correct size for use in tracing onto cupboards, doors, wall panels and other large spaces. There are also designs for small spaces such as chair backs, drawers, fronts and box tops. These are all authentic and the pattern gives step by step details for the selection and use of paint.

No special skill is needed. All outlines are hand-drawn directly to the surface to be decorated. This pattern may be ordered separately at 35¢. The number is 262. It is included in the packet of Painting Patterns for Leisure-Time Artists at $1.50 postpaid.

This crib is easy to make with ordinary household tools and all metal fittings will be found at any hardware store. The pattern gives a list of materials and dimensions for the different parts and a large perspective sketch showing just how the pieces go together. The lamb pattern is taped to thin plywood, so that the saw and painting outlines may be traced. Areas of flat color are shown on the pattern in natural gradation of tone to give the lamb a realistic effect when glued to the ends of crib and the nursery walls. Pattern 357 may be ordered for 35¢ or it will be included in the Small Household Packet of five standard size patterns for $1.50 postpaid.

Retirement at 65 scored by doctor

VANCOUVER.—A top medical expert on old age said too many Canadian workers are being forced to retire at 65, regardless of their mental and physical abilities.

Dr. Ian Macdonald, chief of medical services at Toronto's Sunnybrook Veterans' hospital and a member of the medical faculty at the University of Toronto, said: "It's bad for the individual and bad for the community if an able-bodied man is forced to retire simply because he has reached the chronological age of 65."

"It has been proved over and over again that no people age at the same rate and there is no good reason why a compulsory retirement age of 65 should be arbitrarily laid down."

Three important factors govern keeping quality of vegetables

Three highly important factors govern the keeping quality of vegetables when these are stored in the home basement or root cellar, states Chas. Walker, Senior Horticulturist, Experimental Station, Morden, Man. These factors are: 1. Desirable maturity or degree of ripening of the vegetables to be stored. 2. Freedom of surface moisture on the vegetables and, 3. A steady and cool storage temperature.

It is not difficult to tell when vegetables are fit for storage. Onion bulbs will have dry, golden scales and the foliage will be yellow and dry right to the top of the bulb. Pumpkins and squash when ripe are well colored and have a hard rind that is difficult to puncture with the thumb nail. Cabbage that is ready for storage has firm, solid heads and foliage which is a strong blue color.

Dry storage

As a rule it is desirable to place the vegetables in a dry place for approximately a week after harvesting. This helps to rid the produce of excess moisture which is often the cause of spoilage in storage. It has been found, also, that if pumpkins and squash are first kept at a temperature of 60 degrees F. for two weeks and then transferred to dry storage at 40 degrees F. they will keep until well after Christmas.

At the Morden Station, hot air at a temperature of 90 degrees F. is blown through crates or sacks of newly harvested onions for 10 days to improve their keeping quality.

The home gardener is advised to remember the importance of storage type vegetable varieties when

Canada spending 210 million to build 14 new sub chasers

OTTAWA.—Canada is spending $210,000,000 to construct 14 new sub chasers. Although there have been snags, the first vessel will be completed late in 1935.

Shipbuilding officials in the defence production department admit progress has been "very slow" but add that snags are being overcome. They estimate all of the so-called St. Laurent class of destroyer escort vessels should be delivered to the navy by late 1937.

"We did not encounter any single major problem, but a lot of little problems," one authority said. "We had problems in getting priorities in materials, constant changes of design by the navy and all other headaches encountered in designing an entirely new type of vessel."

"Now every one is working desperately to get the lead vessel completed as soon as possible."

Construction started

The lead vessel, named the St. Laurent, is under construction by the Canadian Vickers shipyards at Montreal. Few details of the sub chasers have been made public.

Total cost of the vessels, on which design work started in 1934, now is estimated at $210,000,000 or $15,000,000 each. The ships will be 366 feet long with a displacement of 2,000 tons and each will have a crew of 270 officers and men.

The ships will have longer-range asdic to probe for submarines and will have improved armament. Each ship will be equipped with two squids or mortar-type of shell launcher, firing explosion-timed shells over the ship's bow.

Six sub chasers now have been launched, but there still is a lot of work to be done on each before it is completed, including installation of electronic equipment and the superstructure.

Six launched

The six chasers launched "and the place of construction: St. Laurent, Vickers; Saguenay, Halifax shipyards; Skeena, Burrard Drydocks, Vancouver; Ottawa, Vickers; Fraser, Yarrow's."

Always Dependable

—By Les Carroll

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

Psychology for Mollie

—By ANNA E. WILSON

JEB HAINES had always held that there was no reason for a man to stop learning just because he was getting old. Jeb was middle-aged, thin, and a trifle bald. Right now, he was thinking of his daughter, Mollie, who was going round with young Jack Davis and had taken to dreaming and looking starry-eyed.

Not that Mollie wasn't a sensible girl as well as being pretty or that he had anything against Jack, who was taking engineering in the same college in which Mollie was studying for her art degree, but there was Jack's father, Caleb Davis, who worked both at the bottling works.

Down at the bottling works.

Both Jeb and Caleb belonged to the Volunteer Firemen's Brigade that supplemented the regular fire department and helped out nights. The equipment had been supplied by the bottling works where Cal worked, and the men met every Thursday to practice life-saving and fire-extinguishing and to play a game of checkers or cards and drink a few cokes in the room over the station afterwards.

Cal wasn't popular with the other men. He was loud, red-faced. His booming voice carried all over the station and he was loud in the praise of Cal. "And I said to the president, 'it's not that I'm not satisfied with the accounting department but the money isn't what a man who's taken a full course in accounting down at the James Business School has a right to expect.'"

Jeb always played a game of checkers with Cal while the other men played cards. Cal always won. He played, Jeb thought, like a man trying to prop up his opinion of himself by lordling it over opponents. It wasn't that Cal expected you to believe him. Everybody knew that Cal was nothing but a bottle jerker in the plant, and no one had ever seen the president of the works for years, or the owner either, for that matter. It just seemed that Cal was a natural show-off and thinking of him, as he surreptitiously removed a book from Mollie's room in the library table, Jeb frowned.

Jeb regarded Mollie's weighty tomes with awe. He, himself, had had little education, having had to leave school in the fifth grade and go to work to help out at home. He'd married Mollie's mother when their first child was born. He'd been hard years, busy years, but he'd promised Mollie's mother to do his best for Mollie and had endeavored her in the college as soon as she came out of high school.

Jeb leafed through the books rapidly. Psychology. He wouldn't know much about that, but after reading a few pages, Jeb gave an indignant snort. Seemed this man was of the opinion that the way people talked about themselves had little to do with their real feelings. When they were loud and boastful, it was just because they were unsure of themselves. Jeb thought of Cal Davis and chuckled, then he very thoughtfully put Mollie's book aside.

Jeb didn't play checkers with Cal on Thursday night because he was called away by his sister Ellie's oldest girl's wedding and stayed to help out with the farm work for the next six weeks. When he came into the fire station, Cal wasn't there, but after practice was over and he had seated himself at his favorite table for a game of checkers, Cal came hurrying in. Jeb stared. Cal was wearing a new suit with a clean white shirt. He spoke quietly, too, and his eyes were steady and honest and his little humble as he laid out his men. Cal won the first game without much trouble. Jeb remarked mildly, "It do seem, Cal, as you'd sort of changed your ways. Things going all right down at the bottling works? Looks like you're dressed pretty fancy for a bottle-

Cal's face lit up. "I'm not a bottle man anymore. Six weeks ago, Mr. Appleton, the head of the accounting department, came into the factory. Called my name out in front of everybody. Said he was going to try me out on the books. Says I'm doing well, too, and will soon be assistant to the chief."

Jeb took a long drink from his coke. "Not many men over fifty that that much ambition. Cal. Must be, you had a pretty strong motive for wanting to go to account."

Cal's face reddened like a school boy's. "Well, it was this way, Jeb. My boy, Jack, is working his way through for engineering and it did seem hard on the boy to have a father working in the bottling plant. Not that Jack ever complained. Jack says a man that's worked steady all his life and brought home his pay, shoveling snow for the city when the plant shut down and not letting his pride stand in the way of his family's health when he had to get a little help from the city in the depression, Jack says that's being a stable character and a good citizen and one the country should be proud of. But it wasn't just Jack. Cousin Fanny's boy, Fred, takes the same course Jack does and he says Jack's been going around with a college girl. Women set quite a store by jobs with fancy clothes and maybe it would go against Jack's chances with the girl having a father working at the bottling, so I took this course over at the school and Mr. James said I had real aptitude for it, and now, I'm real humbly into his cokes. 'I'm right in line to be assistant.'"

Jeb set up another game. "I got a girl in college myself, Cal. They're a pretty wise lot, these young ones. I didn't have many advantages myself but I like to look over Mollie's college books once in a while. Now this psychology, it's sort of interesting."

Cal smiled guiltily and leaned over to speak in a voice hardly above a whisper, "It's History that gets me, Jeb. I like to take a peek at it when Jack isn't around."

Jeb opened the door into the library stealthily and found himself alone. He dropped into an uncomfortable chair before the fire and removed his shoes. Mollie's books were still on the table and he settled himself comfortably with the History of Civilization, then decided to think or Mollie instead.

Funny, he didn't worry about Mollie anymore. A man who's father could learn something when he was over fifty and succeed at it too—well, Mollie was young all right for herself.

Deep in the History of Civilization, he chuckled. Maybe these youngsters knew a lot of fancy things that he and Cal didn't know but he could never have found out what a fine character Cal really was—if he hadn't owned the Bottling Works. (Copyright Western Newspaper Syndicate)

Western barley pool is closed

OTTAWA—The Right Honourable C. D. Howe, minister of Trade and Commerce, announced that the Canadian Wheat Board 1933-34 western barley pool had been closed as at September 30, 1934. The final payment for distribution to producers is $9,533,496.41.

During the crop year 1933-34 producers delivered 101,193,958 bushels of barley to the board. The average net final payment to producers is 8.71747 cents per bushel after deduction of payment expenses and the Prairie Farm Assistance Act levy.

Mr. Howe stated that The Canadian Wheat Board would commence issuing final payment barley cheques on October 19.

The 1933-34 Oats Pool will be closed immediately and final payments on this Pool will be made following the completion of the barley payment.

Grave concern

The new variety of wheat, Selkirk, has stood up very well against the ravages of early frost. It is estimated that about 3 million bushels of this variety has been produced in Saskatchewan and Manitoba this year but there is grave concern as to whether it can be harvested safely this fall—Wheat Pool Budget.

You can't go ALL-OUT If you feel ALL-IN

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. This leads to disturbed rest, that "fired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's stimulates the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Doan's Kidney Pills at any drug counter.

WORLD OF WHEAT

by W. G. Malaher

Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Co., Limited

A Time to Examine Seed Stocks

Because much of the crop was seeded late, and the quality in many areas has since been affected by excessive moisture, rust and frost, it will be more important than ever this year to make an early test of grain to be seeded in 1955.

Whilst many farmers find it desirable to have an official germination test made at their nearest Plant Products Division Lab—and this is a necessary step if the grain is to be sold as seed—a simple and fairly accurate germination test of seed for one's own use can be made on the farm.

A useful leaflet describing 4 methods that may be followed can be obtained either from the nearest Searle elevator agent, or by writing direct to the Research Department, Searle Grain Company Limited.

It is suggested that a home test, following one of the methods outlined, made early, will give a good indication of how well and how strongly the seed will germinate. Seed that is on the borderline, or about which there is any doubt, can then be discarded or perhaps forwarded for an official test under controlled conditions.

Television Antennas

The installation of television antenna supporting structures adjacent to overhead power lines constitutes a serious accident and fire hazard. If the structure contacts the power line either when it is being erected or later under storm conditions, the full voltage of the power line will be impressed on the structure and antenna. Fatal accidents and fires have been caused by such contacts.

Persons erecting television antennas should wherever possible maintain sufficient clearances from the power lines to ensure that no contact will be made if the antenna structure falls. It is recommended that the distance from the power line be six feet greater than the total height of the structure. Where such clearances cannot be obtained the structure must be securely guyed away from the power line. The company owning the power line should be notified when the installation is being made so they may have a representative present to temporarily disconnect the line, if necessary.

Details of safe construction standards for domestic antennas exceeding fifteen feet in height have been compiled by the Canadian Standards Association under Specification C22.4 No. 112. These Specifications are available from the Canadian Standards Association, National Research Building, Ottawa, at a cost of 75c per copy.

The minimum requirements for the installation of television antennas and lead in cables, together with the protective grounding required are contained in Section 54 of the Canadian Electrical Code, Part I, Sixth Edition, which has been adopted under the Electrical Protection Act of Alberta.

WE WILL REMEMBER THEM

In Flanders Fields

In Flanders Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row.
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders Fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe,
To you, from falling hands, we throw
The torch, be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow,
In Flanders Fields.

FIVE FAMILIES RECEIVE HONORS FOR ACHIEVEMENT

Edmonton—Honored for their outstanding achievements in farming and in family and community life, winners of the Master Farm Family awards for 1954 were announced by Hon. L. C. Halmrast, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta. They are the Martin Arndt family of the Barhead; the Harlie H. Conrad family of Clairmont; the Adam Buyer family of Carbon; the William Storch family of Garden Plains; and the Ansley King family of High River.

In this the sixth year of the Master Farm Family award program, increased interest was evident, a total of 32 families receiving nominations as compared with 22 last year. Every candidate must be a Canadian citizen who has operated a farm either as owner or lessee for 30 consecutive years. Three neighbors must make the nomination, and the nominated family must agree to accept the honor.

As in former years, each family receives an award of $1000, an engraved plaque, and a name plate for the farmstead entrance. Winners are selected on a regional basis, and confirmed by a provincial committee, composed in each case of a working farmer, a technical agriculturist, a home economist, a housewife and a representative from the Dominion Experimental Farms.

In evaluation, points are given in respect to 87 factors related to the farm operation, farm life, community work and business management. Candidates are rated in comparison with an optimum possible score for each point.

What's Doing in Other Towns

(Tofield Mercury)
The Tofield and Ryley Fire Departments this week both responded to a call from Shonis where the 10,000 gallon oil tank pump unit and oil pump was on fire. Workers unloading oil trucks into the tank had been heating a valve with a blow torch, when spilled oil on the side of the tank caught fire. A call for help was immediately sent to Tofield and Ryley. Tofield truck, not having as far to travel, arrived first and with the use of fog had the flames out in about two minutes.

Residents of Vegreville and the surrounding communities who are planning to curl under ideal conditions in the new six sheet artificial rink of the Heather Curling Club would be well advised to pick up their one-hundred dollar shares before it is too late, was the keynote of an enthusiastic meeting of shareholders held in the cottage school last Friday evening. Curling fees for men are set at $35 and tentative fees for ladies and students, subject to executive approval, will be $15 and $10 respectively. Fees to be paid before curling starts.

Good news broke for Vermilion and district hockey fans when Neil McLean and Mitchell Taylor, president and secretary respectively of the Tigers hockey club, announced that they had secured the services of Elmer Kreller to act as playing coach of the team.

Kreller, who lives just fourteen miles away at Mannville, was playing coach of the Tigers in the 1952-53 season and piloted the team to the Eastern Alberta championship.

A large black bear, weighing between 450 and 500 pounds was shot early Sunday morning at the Purvis Leeder farm, located about two miles south of the river. On Saturday night, Archie McLean took a couple of shots at the supposedly same animal (and missed) just as it had knocked out one of his 275-pound hogs in the pen with one swat, and was hopping over the fence with the pig. Archie states that the bear cleared the fence with the hog as if it were a chicken. Incidentally, he has never found any trace of his pig. The following morning, Purvis Leeder heard a commotion in his hog pen, so got up, grabbed his rifle and got in a couple of telling shots, and dropped the big animal just as it was climbing out with another pig after, killing several small ones in the pen.

Realizing that the town would not be able to finance such a project after just recently installing water and sewer facilities, the Board of Trade felt that the only hope of getting the gas in here would be by attracting private capital which would cause no burden to the taxpayer.

For a long time now, the desirability of providing farm markets with a greater measure of stability than that afforded by the open market has generally been acknowledged. This is due in the main to two factors, one of these is that it is almost impossible for the farmer to tailor his production to fit the market, this is impossible not only because the farmer lacks any control over what his neighbor does, but also because he is faced only with unpredictable and variables as he plans his farming program.

(Sedgewick Press)

Once is bad enough, but Mr. Colvin Bearisto thinks that when thieves hit the same store twice in six weeks the joke has gone far enough.

Early last Friday morning thieves forced a back door at the Bearisto Bros. Store in Sedgewick and made off with approximately $2500 in cash, after cutting into the large steel safe with a cutting torch. A hole about two feet square was cut out of the side of the large steel safe. Most all of the money was Provincial Treasury Branch money and was covered fully by insurance. Besides the money the thieves made off with two shotguns and a small quantity of ammunition.

WHAT DOES PUBLIC WELFARE DO IN ALBERTA

The following is a summary of what may be regarded as pension plans for certain categories of Alberta citizens:

OLD AGE ASSISTANCE
Under an Agreement with the Government of Canada the Province has, since January 1, 1953, been paying assistance up to $40.00 a month under a means test to persons in the 65-69 age group who have resided in Canada for twenty years or its equivalent.

Fifty percent of the assistance paid may be recovered from the Federal Government.

BLIND PERSONS' ALLOWANCES
Pensions to the blind had for several years been paid under the former Old Age Pension Act. On January 1, 1952, a special Blind Persons' Allowances Act came into effect and, under an Agreement with the Government of Canada, the Province continued to pay an allowance up to $40.00 a month under a means test to blind persons who had attained the age of twenty-one years and had resided in Canada for ten years or its equivalent.

Seventy-five percent of the allowance may be recovered from the Federal Government.

WIDOWS' PENSIONS
Since April 1, 1952, the Province, at its entire expense, has been paying a pension up to $40.00 a month under a means test to widows of the 60-64 age group who had resided in the Province for the greater portion of the three years prior to the date of application and had resided in Canada for a period of fifteen years or its equivalent prior to the date the age of sixty years was attained.

DISABLED PERSONS' PENSIONS
Since June 1st, 1952, at its entire expense, has been paying a pension up to $40.00 a month under a means test to disabled persons who have attained the age of twenty-one years and who have resided in Alberta for the ten years immediately preceding the date of the application.

SUPPLEMENTARY ALLOWANCES
An allowance up to $15.00 a month is payable under a means test to Alberta residents in receipt of Old Age Security, Old Age Assistance and Blind Persons' Allowances.

MOTHER'S ALLOWANCES

These allowances have been paid in Alberta since 1919 to any needy widow with dependent children according to the schedule in effect which vary from $50.00 a month to $145.00 a month. A special allowance up to $10.00 a month may, in addition, be paid in cases where the need is apparent.

The municipality in which the widow has acquired residence assumes twenty percent of the cost of the regular allowance, the Province paying the balance in addition to the special allowance. This allowance is payable until the child reaches the age of sixteen years or of eighteen years if attending school and making satisfactory progress.

HOSPITALIZATION AND TREATMENT SERVICES

The Province, at its own expense, provides certain hospitalization and treatment services to Alberta residents who are in receipt of Old Age Assistance, Mother's Allowance, Widow's Pension or Supplementary Allowance. This is also available to recipients of Old Age Security under a means test.

The Province pays the entire cost of the administration of the foregoing services.

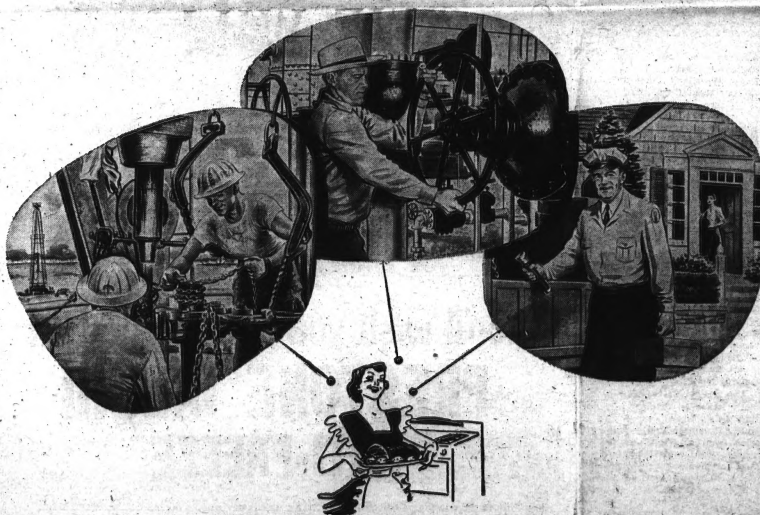

OLD AGE SECURITY

To persons who have attained the age of seventy years and have resided in Canada for a period of twenty years or its equivalent the Federal Government pays a pension of $40.00 a month without a means test.

SOONER! THIS WINTER

or LATER! NEXT SUMMER

You'll wish you had insisted on PRESTONE BRAND ANTI-FREEZE

Without the complete protection of "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze, you may suffer the expense of serious cooling system damage this winter or even next summer after the anti-freeze has been drained and replaced with water and rust inhibitor.

Remember—a 'substitute' anti-freeze just might get you through the winter without cooling system freeze-up. But freeze-up is less than half the hazard of winter engine operation. Many cases of summer engine overheating problems are caused by inferior anti-freeze protection during the previous winter.

"Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze protects the cooling system against freeze-up, rust, corrosion, acid contamination, clogging, seepage, deterioration of metal and rubber parts. That's complete protection!

WARNING!
You may be told that other brands are 'just the same as' 'Prestone' Anti-Freeze. It isn't so! Insist on 'Prestone' Brand and you can get it anywhere!

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

Goodnight, Sweetheart

By JOHNNY ROWLEY

CHARLEY FERRIS had always said "Goodnight sweetheart" to his wife the last thing before going to bed when they were first married. He had continued the practice when he was thirty, and when he was forty, and now that he was seventy-three he saw no reason for giving it up.

"Goodnight, sweetheart," he murmured, standing in the dusk of the upstairs room in his daughter's home.

He didn't get into bed immediately but went and stood by the window overlooking the garden. It was hot with the heat of late summer after a scorching day and was only now, at ten o'clock, beginning to cool off. He stood there, absently, drinking in the warm glow of the moon, scarcely thinking, when he caught the murmur of voices from the clump of evergreens around the small summer house.

He didn't mean to eavesdrop but the voices wafted up to him on the cool evening breeze were clear and distinct. He knew at once who was there and frowned.

His granddaughter Dorothy . . . Dot, as she was to the family . . . was almost the image of his wife when they were first married. For that reason he had always thought more of her than his other grandchildren. Only today he had heard that she and Dick Albright were on the verge of breaking up. The news had bothered him for he thought a lot of them both and had been looking forward to the day when they would be married. He had continued to worry about it all day.

His hesitant offer of help had been met with refusal. "It's nothing you can do anything about, Gramps," Dot had told him. "I'll just have to work out of my own accord."

He had had to be content with that but it had continued to worry him. The voices were lower now and he could only catch a word now and then.

He heard Dick say earnestly: "But Dot, if we're to make this thing work out we've got to trust each other." Dot's reply was lost in the night air but the old man had scarcely listened for it.

His mind had gone back almost fifty years. "Did you hear that, Nancy?" he asked. "He says they've got to trust each other." He chuckled. "Remember that time I had to go to Chicago and was a day late in getting back? That was bad enough . . . but when you thought the gloves in my valise the ones I'd forgotten to give you, you thought I was lost for sure. It was a long time, before you would trust me completely." He sobered suddenly, coming back to the present. "They're going through the same thing, Nancy," he said.

They were talking again, earnestly, and had got up and stood now just in front of the summer house where the warm glow of the moon glistened softly on the girl's hair.

She was slim and tall and her hair, tumbling in soft curls was a raven black. "You know I love you," he heard her say. "I guess I always will . . ."

He didn't hear any more for he could see that Dick was about to leave. The fear he had forgotten in his own reminiscing returned with a cold, deadening impact. It seemed that everything must be right; but he couldn't be sure. He strained to catch what they were saying but their tones were lower now.

Then Dick kissed her again. Quickly, the old man thought. He turned to go and paused when he reached the path which led around to the front of the house. He turned to go and paused when he reached the path which led around to the front of the house. He turned for an instant and for that brief moment the old man could see his face clearly in the moonlight. "Goodnight, sweetheart," he called softly. The moon made silvery ripples on the girl's hair.

Charley Ferris straightened up, a smile on his lips. The fear he had felt all along was gone and in its place an exultation he had felt only once before . . . the night he had proposed to his wife! "Did you hear that, Nancy?" he demanded. "Everything's all right. The trouble is all patched up. He turned from the window, leaving Dot standing quietly in the moonlight and went to his narrow bed. He paused for an instant before he got in . . . long enough to switch on the light and look at the picture of a dark-haired laughing girl in a high-collared, long-sleeved dress which stood on his bureau.

"Goodnight, sweetheart," he whispered and then turned off the light and sank back against the pillow with a contented sigh.

"Goodnight, sweetheart," he murmured once again before his eyes fell shut.

Warm weather speeds Alberta harvesting work

EDMONTON. — Warm, dry weather of the last couple of weeks has provided ideal harvesting conditions and rapid harvesting progress is reported in almost all areas of Alberta. R. E. English, statistician for the provincial department of agriculture, reported recently.

At Olds, Stettler, Lacombe, Ponoka, Edmonton, Westlock, Smoky Lake and Bonnyville districts five to 20 percent of oats and wheat were reported threshed at the weekend. In the south operations are nearer completion. Moisture in the fields still is hampering some cutting.

In the north, progress varies from two-thirds completed north of the Peace river to about one-third south of the river.

"Yields appear satisfactory in view of the condition of the crop at the time killing frosts occurred," Mr. English said. "Farmers are obtaining as much or more grain than they expected at Sept. 20. But many fields of late oats and barley will not be threshed."

Quality is low with wheat grades in the south averaging No. 2 and 3 northern and in some districts east of Lethbridge oats and barley will grade above feed. In northern parts of the Peace River district there is a little No. 2 northern and a great deal of oats and barley will rate C.W. grades.

In most other areas "what added," most reporters suggest that wheat grades will average five or six and that oats and barley will fall almost equally into one and two feed with some three feed."

Pet baby moose is big eater, likes all comforts of home

CLINTON, B.C.—Young Barney is getting downright pampered—and, brother, does he love it. And the Marvin Mayfield probably have the fastest growing family, pound for pound, in North America.

The family consists of Mr., his wife, three little girls, one little boy and one not-so-little moose, Barney.

Needless to say, the 300-pound Barney accounts for the fast-rising poundage.

Although Barney is only a youngster of six weeks, he's already established a solid beachhead in the Mayfield home.

Marv found Barney when Barney had been in this world about one week.

The little bull moose was lying alongside a road near this interior British Columbia community 200 miles north of Vancouver, too weak to stand. The mother was nowhere in sight.

Mayfield had to make a choice. Should he take the baby moose or should he leave it there to die?

Mayfield decided to take the little guy home, he loaded it into his truck. At home, Mayfield and his wife first fed Barney with a bottle and then from a bucket.

Now Barney is just like one of the family and like the Mayfield children he is right positive he has full access to the Mayfield home.

Soft-loving moose
He's a kitchen-raider from the word go. And he's the dog-gone . . . moosest hog of the frontroom davenport.

He eats anything he can lay a tooth to in the kitchen. The davenport is the next sort of an after-breakfast nap you might say.

Barney, despite a penchant for pancakes and panache butter, is rather particular about his eating habits. No hay for Barney, like any old ordinary woods moose.

He really goes for milk. He guzzles six gallons a day.

Mayfield has a fenced-in pasture near the house and that's where Mayfield will try to keep Barney when he grows horns.
